Mr. John S. Mosby, jr., son of Colonel Mosby, who resides in Denver and is an attorney in United States Attorney Holson's office, was called upon. He responded: "Gentlemen, I should be very glad indeed to respond fittingly, but I must beg of you to remember that I labor under the disadvantage of both being young and also of having but a faint recollection of the war."
A voice: "What do you know about your father?" Laughter!. "Well, gentlemen, as I haven't seen him for eight years up to the last week I really can't tell you much about him."—Denver Republican.

AWAY WITH THE "BLOODY SHIRT!"-There is still too much effort to keep alive sectional hatred in this grand country of ours. There are men and politicians who seem to regard it treasonable for our Southern States to honor those who were their leaders during the war, either living or dead. But our friends of the South would not be men if they did not esteem their old leaders. The war is long since past; both sides believed they were right in that conflict; the South was convinced of its error by force of arms, and history does not record an instance in which a conquered people have more cheerfully accepted the arbitrament of war. To-day the United States has really no North, no South, no East, no West, so intimate is the relationship existing between the industry, commerce and agriculture of the various sections.
